HONORS

Professor Ann M. Lousin of The John Marshall Law School received an Award of Merit from the Illinois State Historical Society for two columns that ran in her “Law and Public Issues” column in the Daily Law Bulletin.

She was recognized for “Many consider Fort Dearborn a Chicago tragedy,” which commemorated the bicentennial of the battle and massacre of the Fort Dearborn garrison, and “Professor gives the Amendment an ‘F’” — which explained the proposed amendment to the Illinois Constitution’s clause guaranteeing the rights of those receiving governmental pensions.
