IN THE LAW SCHOOLS

The John Marshall Law School named Ramsey B. Donnell its director of library and technology services.

Donnell will work with Biro Law Library staff as well as academic technology employees. The technology employees include the media services and distance education operations and the information technology department.

He joined the law school as a full-time employee in April 2010. In August 2011, he was named head of access services, and in August 2012, he was named associate director for access and organization.

He is a graduate of the University of Virginia School of Law and practiced at Katten, Muchin, Rosenman LLP in Chicago before returning to school for a master's degree in library and information science from the University of Illinois.
